

millennium MULE DEER

Seven successful mule deer hunts for the new millennium take place on the front range of the Rocky Mountains near Boulder, Colorado with outfitter/guide/hunt-organizer Lad Shunneson of Lad Shunneson Adventures. Colorado conducts three seasons within a season. During the first season, Dick Mann shoots a 30-inch wide buck and Tom Jacobs connects on a 28-incher. During the second season, Lad Shunneson finds the "triple crown buck" he had been looking for, Billie Ritchey shoots a buck with "kickers" that he likes, and Ken Wilson drops a heavy-horned beauty with deep forks. Then, in the third season, with snow on the ground and the rut in full swing, the father-son team of Roger and Randy Ellis each make long, uphill shots to complete the action. Between the hunts, enjoy brief sightseeing jaunts in colorful Colorado.
